

EXPECT RESULTS TO INDICATE TREND OF OPINION NEXT YEAR

Charles E. Hill (D), Seventh New York (Brooklyn)—Wm. L. Padgett (R) vs. Joseph De-laune (D).

The Democrats are expected to have comparatively easy victories in Brooklyn and Cleveland, where those districts are normally Democratic. The Republicans, similarly, are expected to have little trouble in retaining the Philadelphia district.

The other two, however, in Cincinnati and in the Saginaw District of Michigan, are expected to provide a sterner test. The Cincinnati district is the late Nick Longworth's old district, and the Democrats have put forth unusual efforts to capture it, not only because of the seat itself, but for psychological reasons as well.

With the exception of 1912, the year of the big Republican split, it has regularly returned a Republican to Washington. It nearly always turned up at Republican majorities in the past, but last year the popular "Nick" barely squeezed through by 3,500. On the basis of that fact, and the protest vote anticipated because of unemployment and business conditions, he Democrats have built high hopes.

The eighth Michigan similarly is normal Republican territory. Yet there the prohibition issue has been injected into the campaign with some heat, the Republican being dry, and the Democrat wet. And both Republican and Democratic leaders here privately consider the outcome in doubt.

Oddly enough, this district is the only one of the five where the prohibition issue enters to any extent. In all of the other contests, both the Republican and Democratic candidates are wet.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 3. — Kentucky voters today trooped to the polls to select an entire state administration, members of the state house representatives, half of the senate and nine heads of state administrative departments.

Ballots were to cast also on an amendment to the state constitution to give city school districts increased bonding powers and to divide whether or not a constitutional convention shall be called to revise the state fundamental law.

Judge Ruby Laffoon, Democrat, of Madisonville, is opposed to Mayor William B. Harrison, Republican, of Louisville, for the governorship. Democratic headquarters at Louisville has predicted a majority of more than 86,000 for its candidate and the Republican manager has forecast a victory for Harrison by 38,000 voters.

Mr. Pendry, who succeeds W. W. Ankrenbrand, superintendent of Athens schools, is 36 years of age. He studied at Swarthmore, Ohio State and the University of Chicago. Prior to serving as school superintendent in Xenia, Mr. Pendry was principal of Xenia Central High School.

EQUAL-MONTHS CALENDAR

FORT COLLIS, Colo.—A new calendar, devised by Mrs. M. S. Fishback, photographer's wife, would make each month like every other month and each year just alike. Every month would start on Sunday and end on Saturday. Mrs. Fishback submitted her calendar to the World Calendar Association of New York city, the Committee of Calendar Simplification of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Calendar Committee of the League of Nations, and George Eastman, American philanthropist, who has taken the lead in advocating calendar reform.

COMMUNITY BACKS MOVE TO PRESERVE XENIA GUARD UNIT

al Guard and explained its aims and purposes. He revealed that prior to passage of the National Defense Act of 1920 the National Guard was a state organization, supplementing the standing army in times of national emergency.

Under the new defense act, however, the regular army was skeletonized, only sufficient numbers being maintained to police island and outlying possessions, and the National Guard was reorganized as a federal unit and made the front line of the national defense. Thus in times of national emergency, the Guard units would be called immediately into service and would become the back bone of the nation's military strength.

Because of the greater importance thus placed upon the Guard, it was agreed that the component units should be well officered and the personnel should be of the highest type in order to assure first class military organizations. The local problem develops because the standard of personnel demanded by regimental officers has not been maintained here.

In order to "sell" the National Guard to Xenia various means of educating the public will be attempted, it is said. These include meetings of organizations to be addressed by Guard officers at which the purpose of the reorganization will be explained.

Organizations represented at Monday night's meeting, and which promised support of the movement, were: Rotary Club, Xenia Country Club, Poody Post, American Legion; Xenia Lodge of Odd Fellows, Xenia Ministerial Association, Downtown Country Club, Forty and Eight Society, Central Parent-Teacher Association, Business and Professional Women's Club, Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity, Xenia Retail Merchants Association, Xenia city board of education, Xenia Boy Scouts, Order of Eastern Star, Women's Relief Corps, Spring Hill P. # SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Emulating the mighty Greeks of olden times, Xenia Central footballers, though not quite so mighty, will storm the walls of Troy Saturday afternoon.

It is the intention to convey the idea that the Buccaneers will invade Troy for their fourth Miami Valley League game and also their sixteenth football clash with the Trojans since 1916.

Since that year the schools have met annually on the gridiron without a break, Xenia teams winning six times and scoring 106 points, while Trojan eleven have won eight times and tallied 250 points. One game was scoreless in 1918.

Last season the Bucs snapped a fourteen-game losing streak by defeating Troy, 25 to 7 in a stunning upset. This year Xenia has a chance to break a smaller losing string of four games at the expense of the Trojans but the odds will be heavily against anything like this happening. The Troy eleven of 1931 is not the Troy eleven of 1930—more's the pity. Following are the scores of Xenia-Troy contests since 1916:

1916—Xenia, 0; Troy, 55.
1917— " 13; " 7.
1918— " 0; " 0.
1919— " 13; " 19.
1920— " 0; " 33.
1921— " 16; " 0.
1922— " 7; " 45.
1923— " 0; " 18.
1924— " 0; " 8.
1925— " 26; " 0.
1926— " 0; " 21.
1927— " 6; " 0.
1928— " 6; " 39.
1929— " 25; " 7.

Striking a prophetic pose, Mr. Paul Snider, prominent druggist, has condescended to endanger his well known reputation as a forecaster of the weather, football games and the next war by guessing the possible but not probable winners of fifteen scheduled grid games this Saturday. Paul figures the following teams as winners and requests friends to please omit floures:

Brown to beat Ohio Wesleyan.
Pittsburgh to beat Carnegie Tech.
Harvard to beat Dartmouth.
Michigan to beat Indiana.
Wittenberg to beat Miami.
Georgia to beat New York U.
Northwestern to beat Minnesota.
Ohio State to beat Navy.
Xavier to beat Dayton.
So. California to beat Stanford.
Denison to beat Cincinnati.
Iowa to beat Nebraska.
Illinois to beat Wisconsin.
Notre Dame to beat Pennsylvania.
Muskingum to beat Wooster.

Bowling

Rolling the second highest individual three-game series recorded since the Recreation Bowling League came into existence in Xenia a number of years ago, Hollis "Batter" Peterson, collecting 761 pins, made it possible for the Famous Autos to win three straight games from Krippendorf in a league match Monday night.

Peterson bowled scores of 231, 247 and 223, surpassing by thirty-nine pins his own previous league record of 662 for high individual series this season.

Bowlers recall that the only other 700 series registered in local league competition was credited to Howard Brickel who, incidentally, bowled with the Krippendorf quintet Monday night.

The Famous Autos combined games of 1,026, 999 and 916 for a total of 2,941, only seventeen pins shy of the league record for three-game total. Krippendorf bowlers also were in good form and amassed 2,775 pins, Leach showing the way with 583.

HARRY GRAVES WAS ROCKNE'S ONLY JINX

Wilberforce Coach's Great Playing Enabled Michigan State To Beat Fine Notre Dame Way Back When —

By PHIL FRAME
ONE AUTUMN evening a year ago Grantland Rice, nationally known sports authority, was interviewing the immortal Knute Rockne, football coaching genius of Notre Dame, over radio.

"Did you ever have any particular 'jinx' in your coaching career?" asked the interviewer.

Rock pondered the question. And then he remembered. "Yes," he responded, "it was a fellow named Harry Graves."

And thereby, as they put it, hangs a tale, for the man to whom the Notre Dame mentor referred is none other than Harry C. Graves, head football coach at Wilberforce University.

Back in 1918, when Graves was only a sophomore, he was an All-American selection, playing fullback on the Michigan State team, or the Michigan Argos as they were then called.

OHIO TEAMS FACING HOT GRID BATTLES FOR THIS WEEK-END

Wesleyan Will Play
Brown; Ohio Takes On De Pauw

By International News Service
Stadia east and west will be battlegrounds Saturday for the hottest warfare of the week among Ohio college football teams.

Intersectional games to be participated in by Ohio University and Ohio Wesleyan in outside states are expected to overshadow anything to be offered in the college class within Ohio's borders.

The western thrust will be executed by the clawing Bobcats of Ohio University in an invasion of Greencastle, Ind., for a game with DePauw. That game is expected to clinch definitely the Buckeye Athletic Association title for the Athens team.

Sweeping into Rhode Island for a stop at Providence, the Bishops of Wesleyan will duel with Brown. Almost definitely out of the Buckeye championship picture as a result of their defeat by Ohio University Saturday, the Wesleyanites will be battling for sectional glory only in their clash with Brown.

At Wooster this week the disciples of L. C. Boles are trying to learn new tricks with which to halt the onrushing Muskingum team.

Undeclared and untied, the Muskies will attempt to continue their swift pace, and expect to be encouraged by a big crowd of homecoming fans who will return to the New Concord campus for a victory reunion.

Baldwin-Wallace and Wittenberg, also undeclared, will meet Ashland and Miami, respectively.

The surprise pasting handed Akron by Ashland last week has boosted the chances of Baldwin-Wallace being upset this Saturday.

Its 19 to 0 mauling of Denison has given hope to Miami in the second place in the Buckeye Conference.

Case, which has ridden to successive victories over Oberlin, Akron and Wooster, does not anticipate much trouble with its game at Hiram, and has admittedly "eased up." Case's only worry now is the game with Reserve next week.

Other games scheduled this week include:

Marquette at Ohio Northern. Cincinnati at Denison. Findlay at Bowling Green. Earlham at Bluffton. Wilmington at Cedarville. Grove City at John Carroll. Western Reserve at Syracuse. Dayton at Xavier. Capital at Kent. Akron at Oberlin.

Removing the case from consideration by the jury, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy brought the trial of George Connors, colored, Xenia, for auto theft, to an abrupt end Tuesday morning when he dismissed the charge against the defendant and ordered him released.

COURT DISMISSES CASE, FREES MAN

Connors was indicted with Thur Franklin in connection with the theft of a Chevrolet roadster valued at $150 from Horace Watson last June 25. Franklin recently pleaded guilty. Sentence has not been passed in his case.

Jury trial of John Friend, Dayton Pike, on a gambling charge, originally assigned for Tuesday, was postponed and a new date has not been set for the case. Prosecutor Marcus McCallister announced.

PLAY PRESENTED AT FEDERAL HOSPITAL

"Adam and Eve," a three act comedy, which was presented here recently by the Xenia Little Theater, was repeated by the cast for the benefit of 350 patients of the U. S. Veterans Hospital, Chillicothe, Monday evening. The play was given under the auspices of the hospital corps of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Twenty-five people, including members of the cast and the girls' octet of the O. S. U. Home, made the trip to Chillicothe in the Home bus donated by Capt. Harold L. Hays. Preceding the performance they were entertained at dinner by the hospital staff. The Home girls' octet sang several songs between acts of the play.

SMITH TAKES JOB
CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Horton Smith, golf professional of Joplin, Mo., has signed as professional at the Oak Park Country Club here, it was announced today.

Harry notified him he would be able to attend.

Graves did not receive any tickets this season but he knows Coach "Hunk" Anderson, the late Rockne's successor, well, and could have the duets for the asking.

Before the Wilberforce-Tuskegee football game at Chicago, Ill., a week ago, Graves spoke for five minutes over radio on a program incident to a memorial for Rockne.

Graves learned his football under George Gauthier. He has kept pace with the development of the game and since becoming head football coach at Wilberforce in 1924, has annually turned out teams that have made strong claims to national recognition among colored colleges.

A great believer in the Warner system, Graves develops teams that are expert exponents of this system. Graves-coached eleven are especially adept at a well-conceived forward passing game that is a beautiful thing to watch.

How often do you hear of a football team completing eight out of nine attempted passes for a total gain of 144 yards during a game? That is precisely what the Bulldogs did against Alabama State Friday night at Cox Field.

Graves was selected on the second All-American team in 1918. That season he was placed on the all-Michigan first team ahead of another football star who had made the All-American. Dropping out of school two years, he returned to Michigan State and easily made All-American again two years straight.

Rockne never forgot the incident and it was typical of him that ever afterward he sent Graves a couple of complimentary tickets to Notre Dame football games whenever

COUNTY RELIEF COMMITTEE IS SEEKING LISTS OF UNEMPLOYED

Cooperation of village councils and township trustees in furnishing the Greene County Relief Committee with lists of jobless men in their communities is being sought by County Commissioner C. A. Jacobs, chairman of the relief committee.

In line with the recommendation of the State Relief Committee that the state government participate to the fullest extent possible in the extension of employment and relief, the state highway department has planned the construction of about 260 bridges in Ohio during the coming winter.

A number of bridges are to be built in each county, including Greene, and the labor employed in this construction will be supplied from a list submitted by each county relief committee.

As a part of the employment relief program, all contracts for bridges constructed will embody a clause specifying that in carrying on winter bridge construction for emergency relief, the contractor shall, insofar as practicable, employ labor from lists furnished him by the county relief committee.

Twenty-two names of jobless men have already been furnished the local relief organization. The committee urges village councils and boards of township trustees throughout the county to augment this list with separate lists of their own section and send them to the county commission's office.

Need alone will determine priority of employment or relief, regardless of political affiliations, race or creed, profession or trade; whether the man seeking work is a farmer, laborer or clerk, no distinction is to be made other than need for employment.

The first bridges on this program are to be sold November 6. It is therefore imperative, the committee says, that the labor lists be ready to submit to contractors at the time they are ready to begin construction. The fullest cooperation of councils and trustees is desired in this matter.

Two of the bridge projects proposed for Greene County will be let November 6 at a cost estimated at $28,724.36, including an expenditure of $8,291.49 for approaches.

Both bridges will be built over Caspers creek on the Jamestown Pike. One will be a concrete beam bridge with a forty-five foot span and twenty-four foot roadway. The other will be of the same type construction, having two thirty-foot spans and a twenty-four foot roadway over the north branch of the stream. May 31, 1932 is the date set for completion of the projects.

The contractors will pay not less than 35 cents an hour for labor.

While the amount of labor involved in these two bridge projects will provide temporary jobs for only a limited number of men, other similar projects are planned for Greene County later on. In addition to the contract bridge work, the highway department also plans some force account bridge work in each division, which will also furnish labor for some of the unemployed.

TUESDAY VOTING IN EARLY HOURS LIGHT SURVEY INDICATES

In the face of contests for City Commission, city school board, Xenia Twp. trustees and clerk, an exceptionally light vote was being recorded at the "off-year" election in Xenia Tuesday.

With perfect weather prevailing during the day, it was expected, however, that voters would flock to the polls in increasing numbers in the afternoon.

A survey of the fourteen city precinct polling places at noon disclosed that everywhere the balloting was light and that the most votes had been cast in the fifth precinct. At this particular polling place 109 voters had scratched their ballots. This was considered average. In the eighth precinct only sixty-four electors had showed up.

The polls will close at 6:30 o'clock, after which first returns are not expected to be long in coming. Tabulation of votes in Xenia city is not expected to be a slow process, but precinct officials have been instructed to count the ballots on the state-wide issue—the welfare bond proposal—first before turning their attention to issues of local interest.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning on a statutory charge, LeRoy Turner, colored, Wilberforce University student, pleaded not guilty and was sent to jail in default of $1,000 bond to await a hearing fixed for Wednesday morning. The offense was charged against a 14-year-old girl, the affidavit being filed by her father.

READ THIS FIRST:

Lois Corbin, a pretty working girl falls in love with Bruce Durand, the nephew of Charles Durand, one of Chicago's wealthiest. Ashamed to have Bruce know where she lives, Lois leaves away, where Arlene on the sent be side him. When Bruce arrives at the apartment he fully expects to see Lois, but Arlene has arranged things to suit herself. She tells him that Lois has gone out with another man. Bruce becomes angry, and asks Arlene if she would like to go out with him. They go to the Edgemoor Hotel to dance, because Arlene tells Bruce that is where Lois is going to spend the evening. Arlene orders a big dinner, but Bruce only drinks a mint julep. He keeps watching the door for some signs of Lois, but she does not show up. When Bruce takes Arlene home he is so jealous that he makes another date with her for the following Friday.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 20

ARLENE walked into the dining room of the Edgemoor hotel on the arm of Bruce Durand, her nose tilted into the air, and feeling assured that all eyes were focused on her. She had the impression that everybody in town knew Bruce. Secretly she hoped that there was at least one person there who knew her, so that the one could see that she got around, as she called it. But she was reasonably sure that there would be no one there who would recognize her.

Arlene craved to be noticed. Her only ambition was to make a good match for herself. Somebody like Bruce, for instance, with enough social prestige and money to put her just a head above the majority of people. She had been eager enough to give Bruce every little attention when they had been at the apartment but now that they were on the tables were turned. She made every demand possible. She didn't fancy having him sit across the table from her. She wanted him next to her where she could talk without having to scream to him. At least that was the excuse she gave him. In reality, she wanted him there so that she could use her eyes to better advantage and also be able to put his hand whenever she felt like it.

Although it was past dinner time, Arlene had not eaten. She told Bruce that she was hungry. He was busy when she told him. He was busy looking the entire dining room over for Lois. So he didn't answer.

She said again, "I didn't have my dinner tonight, Bruce, did you?"

He turned around then to face her. "What? What's that? Oh, yes. Yes, I had my dinner. Go ahead. Get anything you want."

Arlene beamed. She took the long menu card and scanned it carefully. All the while Bruce was looking anxiously for a glimpse of Lois. Arlene was looking for something she had always wanted to order but had never been able to get because the boys with whom she went ordered for her. They took no chances.

There was a dinner for two dollars and a half a plate. That sounded good to Arlene. It simply must be good because it cost so much money. After the waiter had stood patiently with his pad and pencil for at least ten minutes, Arlene ordered. She ordered filet mignon. She didn't know exactly what it was but she had read about it and she knew it was some kind of meat.

The waiter repeated after her, "Filet mignon?" Arlene looked up at him quickly. What was he trying to do? Embarrass her? It was spelled with "t," wasn't it? Why shouldn't it be pronounced the way it was spelled. Luckily Bruce was not listening to her. She was sure the waiter must be right after all.

Bruce ordered a mint julep. It was terrible when the waiter brought the food, so obviously a case of a girl getting a dinner out of a man. Bruce didn't mind, though. He didn't think about it. He noticed it, of course, but his mind was on only one thing, Lois Corbin. After he had made sure that she was not in the dining room he turned his eyes to the doorway and kept them there.

Arlene didn't talk so much when her dinner came. She was hungry and she decided to enjoy the dinner first and Bruce afterward. When the orchestra played Bruce watched the floor like a hawk, thinking perhaps that, after all, he might have slipped up on seeing Lois, and that he would be sure to catch her on the dance floor if she were there.

"Want to dance?" he asked Arlene out of politeness.

Arlene smiled her most engaging smile.

"Yes, let's," she agreed.

She was awfully disappointed because she didn't happen to be anyone there that night who spoke to Bruce. She wanted his friends to see that he had broken off with Lois.

The music was simply divine, Arlene thought. When they were dancing a dreamy waltz she managed to let her hand slip upward so that it touched Bruce's neck. Then she pressed it against him slightly. She looked up at him expecting a smile. But he apparently hadn't even noticed it, for he did not even look at her. Instead he said, "I haven't seen Lois here. Are you sure they were coming to the Edgemoor?"

Arlene said lazily, "I'm not sure. No. They talked of two different places. Lois said she wanted to come here, but Mack said that they had a new orchestra down at the Cotton club that he wanted to hear.

"That's where they went, then," Bruce said. "Let's go down there and see. Want to?"

Arlene didn't exactly like the way Bruce was chasing after Lois, but she thought she had better humor him tonight. So she told him "yes," that she had been simply dying to get down there.

Bruce hurried her through with her dinner. That is, he didn't tell her to hurry but he called the waiter for the check and paid hastily. Then he sat there drumming his fingers on the smooth, white tablecloth.

"Ought to get down there," he said. "They're likely to leave before we arrive."

Arlene said, "No, oh no. She always stays out late with Mack."

She saw Bruce's jaw harden. Perhaps she had better not say any more about Lois. No doubt she had said enough for one evening to put her scheme over successfully. Arlene was stupid, as a matter of fact. She didn't look any further ahead than the moment. If she could say something that would help her along for the evening, that was as far as she considered. She never once dreamed that Bruce might call Lois, that Lois might call Bruce and demand an explanation from him. She merely went along her smooth and easy course and let things occur as they might.

Of course, she had no idea but that everything would turn out in her favor. She had the utmost confidence in her personality and also in her ways of getting her man.

Arlene did not enjoy herself much at the Cotton club. It was the first time she ever had been down there and she got a "kick" out of that. But then after the novelty of being in a new place wore off she had to be content to sit there with Bruce and ask questions that were either not answered at all or else were answered in such a vague manner that Arlene wished she hadn't asked them.

Bruce was concerned solely with finding Lois. Arlene wondered what his plans were after he found her. Of course, she knew there was no danger of that, but she would like to know what would happen if he did see her there with another man.

"What did she wear?" he asked her.

Arlene paused a moment and then said, "I think she wore her suit. I'm not sure though. They were only up in the apartment a few moments."

When Bruce had satisfied himself that Lois was not at the Cotton club, he was ready to depart. He had only one object in being out with Arlene Kennedy and that was to have Lois see him with her. Aside from that, Arlene was a total blank, so far as he was concerned.

He wasn't even going upstairs with Arlene when they got home, pleading a headache and the lateness of the hour, although it was really early. Arlene would not let him off on that. He WAS going to see her upstairs.

She said, "I'm not used to having gentlemen leave me at the door."

A trans-Atlantic broadcast of the Italian Armistice Day ceremonies in Rome will be heard over an NBC network Wednesday from 3 to 4 p. m. through station WLW, Cincinnati.

Musical in character, the program will include the Italian national hymn, war songs, soprano and tenor solos and symphonic selections. Announcements will be made in English by an Italian announcer.

Author To Speak

Alice Duer Miller, well known writer and author of "Manslaughter" and "The Charm School," will be guest speaker in a program over an NBC network through WLW, Cincinnati, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Miller, whose reputation grew rapidly following the publication of her novel, "Are Women People?" in 1915, is the second speaker in this series during which celebrated writers are heard. A musical program will be heard at the same time.

Little Jack Little

Here 'tis! Little Jack Little achieved radio fame several years ago through his "Mythical Night Club of the Air." When he's at the piano, his radio signature, "Yours very truly," is no longer needed to identify him, for he has a distinctive musical touch and his voice is known from coast to coast.

WHITE CHAPEL

The White Chapel Community Club met at the school Thursday evening. The president and vice-president were both absent and Mr. Delbert Ketter acted as chairman and a short business meeting was held before the program. Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, assistant probation officer of Greene County was guest speaker and music was furnished by the Xenia Grange Orchestra. Both of these numbers were very much appreciated by the club members. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by Mrs. and Mrs. Adam Fox and Miss Ruth Beason.

Mrs. Ruth B. Graham spent the week end in Dayton with Miss Ruth Clark, a former college roommate, and attended the fall convention of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kyle and children, Charles and Helen, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Foster Hollingsworth of Dayton.

Mrs. Ida Thomas continues to show slight improvement at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thomas, Stone Road. Mrs. Thomas has been bedfast for four weeks.

Dr. Charles Vance, of Chicago, left for his home Sunday after spending six weeks with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Leininger.

The White Chapel Ladies Aid Society will meet with Mrs. A. L. Switzer, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

GOOD TEACHERS, FIRST

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—Good teachers are more important than elaborate school buildings and the "fine feathers and laces" that accompany modern education, Gov. George H. Dern told members of the Utah Educational Association at their convention here. Governor Dern called on school boards not to let down on educational standards because of economic conditions and suggested that if economy were necessary it could be obtained by doing away with non-essential activities which have crept into the educational program in the past two or three decades.

Actress Of Golden Age, Returns To Ohio Stage

Maude Adams, beloved "Peter Pan" of the golden age of the theater, comes out of the mauve decade to delight patrons of the Ohio Theater, Cleveland, Tuesday night, in what is known in footlight parlance as a "comeback."

The woman is a legend in this modern era, but her name, hung among the greatest in the theater world, will always be very real even after "Peter Pan" is dead, if such a calamity is conceivable.

Now Maude Adams comes from retirement to conjure memories of the turn of the century, of women wearing ratted pompadours and sweeping skirts, of first-night gentlemen in a faint but highly legal glow, clad in top hats and Inverness capes, of an era of hansom cabs, and swinging doors and foamy signs.

Maude Adams retired from the stage but thirteen years ago. Not so long but, since it was Maude Adams who retired, it seems longer. And her retirement was emphasized by its absolute effectiveness, since she deserted her familiar haunts completely. It is rumored that she has been living in a convent near Philadelphia, or New York. And her revival has been reported for at least a year.

Now Cleveland gets to see the great lady first, and is in a state of wild excitement over the prospect. It has been reported that she has been working on a new and extensive system for lighting the stage, something that would revolutionize lighting throughout the world.

Twice in the last two weeks she has been in Cleveland to inspect the stage and, if there is anything to this rumor, the scientific world may be as interested in her return as those of the theater. But the fact that she is coming back transcends in importance any technical discoveries she has made.

Strange to say, it will not be

"Peter Pan" "The Little Minister" or any of those vehicles of her earlier success, that brings her back. Instead she will share honors with Otis Skinner in "The Merchant of Venice", a play in which she has never appeared previously but which long has been a favorite in the Skinner repertoire.

Miss Adams, however, has played other Shakespeare roles. And it is said that she will portray an unconventional Portia, her own interpretation of the character. An extensive tour has been planned for the Adams-Skinner company and it is said that theaters on the itinerary are reporting sell-outs far in advance.

This is as it should be. Maybe, when the house is darkened, there will be a tear shed here and there as the immortal "Peter Pan" revives memories of other days.

NAN BRITTON'S DAUGHTER IS CENTER OF INTEREST IN CASE

By RUTH COSGRAVE
Central Press Correspondent

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 3.—Elizabeth Ann, daughter of Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," likes to read books. She climbs trees with her playmates in New Rochelle, N. Y., where she is in the public schools. And she likes to play solitaire.

She is a pretty, healthy, normal child of 12 years—unusually tall, with straight limbs and graceful, athletic stride.

In Toledo, Elizabeth Ann has been in the background during the trial in federal court of a suit brought by her mother, Nan Britton, against C. A. Klunk, Marion, O., hotel keeper, for alleged libel in a book, "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which he admits he advertised and sold.

Elizabeth Ann Britton

Piercing Eyes

At first the child was permitted in court. Then she was ruled out, although her mother declared previously: "She knows the truth. She is able to discount a great deal of the untruth she will hear and to distinguish between truth and falsehood."

The child, with her straight, blonde hair, her piercing eyes, has been the center of interest.

As court opened before Judge John M. Killits, who came from retirement to preside at the trial, the child sat quietly in her chair at the counsel table, eagerly observing proceedings.

A book, "Billy Whiskers in the South," which Elizabeth Ann had been reading diligently prior to the opening of court, slid forgotten to her lap. A stack of souvenir postcards, which she had been writing to several of her school friends in New Rochelle, N. Y., tumbled to the floor.

As the child sat, swinging her bare legs and gazing with interest around the courtroom, the trial proceeded.

Judge's Words to Jurors

In talking to the jurors, Judge Killits said that the trial has unique significance, as the reputation of a dead president has been attacked.

Some day Elizabeth Ann would like to write, "I use the typewriter just a little now," she says modestly. She has written a brief essay for the Elizabeth Ann League, which her mother says seeks the granting of a legitimate status to every child born out of wedlock.

Elizabeth Ann's chief activity at her home in New Rochelle is the climbing of trees. She and her mother live in a small house, which has a small back yard with two pear trees. There Elizabeth Ann and her small friends climb and play to their heart's content. She usually wears trousers when at play.

Early to Bed

Eight o'clock, though, is bed time for Elizabeth Ann. That, her mother declares, is the secret of the child's sturdy body and happy disposition.

Elizabeth Ann has been reared much like other children. She is registered in the sixth grade of a public school in New Rochelle, N. Y., as the "daughter of Nan Britton and Warren G. Harding."

As the trial went on, the defense assumed the offensive by calling to the stand various citizens of Marion, O., who offered opinions attacking the reputation of the author of "The President's Daughter." But Elizabeth was not in court to hear.

Elizabeth Ann was adopted by Nan Britton's sister, Mrs. Scott Williams of Chicago, shortly after her birth. Mrs. Williams arrived from Chicago as the trial began and took Elizabeth Ann out shopping.

TRIBUTE TO FORMER COUNTY NURSE PAID BY RED CROSS HERE

The offices of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, were closed until noon Tuesday in silent tribute and respect to Miss Helen Evers, who for nine years was employed as public health nurse. The directors under whom Miss Evers served as nurse along with the present directors and officers, attended the funeral services in a body at St. Bridget Church.

In connection with Miss Evers' death Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of the chapter, issued the following statement: "The efficient, helpful service that Miss Evers rendered to others and her understanding sympathetic interest in those who could not help themselves will ever remain an outstanding beautiful memory, not only with the local Red Cross but in the hearts of those who knew and felt her human touch."

The memory of her life and Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or dizziness. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

work is summed up in the language of Eva York: "A larger kindness was given to her, a deeper love and sympathy. Then, oh, one day, someone will say—remembering a lessened pain—Would she could pass this way again!"

MISSIONARIES TO CONDUCT MEETING

Dr. George A. Sowash, of the African Sudan and Miss Henrietta Cowden, of Punjab, India, missionaries of the United Presbyterian Church, will conduct a council- forum in the local U. P. Church Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The afternoon meeting will be held at the Second U. P. Church at 3 o'clock and the evening council will be held at the First U. P. Church at 7:30 o'clock.

As a special feature of the evening meeting Dr. Sowash will show pictures of the work in the Sudan. Both meetings are open to the public.
